State Delegates Summarize 2012 Legislative Session

by Thomas X. White

State Senator Paul Pinsky and Delegates Tawanna Gaines, Anne Healy and Justin Ross were on hand at the June 18 Greenbelt City Council meeting to provide council with reports on the 2012 Maryland General Assembly session as well as the special session held in May to complete work on the state budget.

Pinsky led off his report on the increase in income taxes adopted during the special session. He said only about 13.7 percent of Maryland filers will be subject to a tax increase (generally applying to single taxpayers with incomes in excess of $100,000 and joint filers with combined income more than $150,000). Pinsky noted that increased revenue will benefit most Maryland

On the environmental front, Pinsky reported on adoption of a State Smart Growth plan for rural areas. He noted the adopted plan was not as strong as he would have liked. He also said the General Assembly authorized increased funding for waste water treatment and implementation of storm water management fees at the local level. The governor and the legislature failed to reach agreement on additional casino sites and approval of table games in Maryland, Pinsky reported. (Subsequent to the June 18 meeting, a special committee appointed by Governor Martin O'Malley and General Assembly leaders also failed to reach agreement on new sites or the expansion of gaming in Maryland.)

Education Issues

Healy reported generally on education program improvements and her disappointment that the county delegation failed to support the imposition of a fee to discourage the use of plastic bags at retail outlets in Prince George's County. She was also disappointed at the end-of-session "drama" and the failure to pass a budget. She noted there was always major debate about

For 75th, City Plans Bang-up July 4th Fireworks Celebration

The City of Greenbelt increased its budget for this year by $4,000 to provide an extra special Independence Day fireworks display in celebration of the city's 75th Anniversary. Instead of setting off the rockets and ground displays with flares handled by Public Works employees, the city plans to have the fireworks electronically discharged in synchronization.

The Wednesday display will be at Buddy Attick Park on Crescent Road. The display will begin at dark (about 9 p.m.) and is to last 20 to 30 minutes. Those planning to watch at the park are advised to come early to claim a viewing spot and enjoy a variety of additional free programs during the afternoon and evening, including the playground or walking around the park's 1.25mile wooded trail. Refreshments will be sold by Greenbelt's Babe Ruth Baseball, offering a variety of summer outdoor food for sale as part of a fund raiser.

Concert

The Greenbelt Concert Band will take the bandstand from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. for a rousing performance of patriotic selections.

Bad Weather?

Call Greenbelt Recreation Department Weather and Information Hotline for fireworks schedule adjustments.

301-474-0646

Drum Circle

There will be a drum circle at the bandstand from 7:15 to 8:30 p.m. People are invited to bring a percussion instrument of their own or use one provided to join in celebrating freedom and the interweaving of individual rhythms in this community drum circle. It will be facilitated by Katy Gaughan, back by popular demand.

She is a certified drum circle facilitator, a member of the Rhythm Workers Union and drums in the bands Firewheel and Djesben.

Participants are reminded to observe all posted parking regulations and to cooperate with the Greenbelt Police Department, which will staff the events at the park. For everyone's safety, attendees may not bring fireworks (including sparklers) or alcohol into the park. All are asked to recycle using containers available in the park or by taking recyclables home with them.

Buddy Attick Park is located on Crescent Road near Kenilworth Avenue. In case of inclement weather call the Greenbelt Recreation Department Weather and Information Hotline at 301-474-0646 for schedule adjustments.

Police Guidelines

The Greenbelt Police Department has issued guidelines to enhance holiday safety during the celebration at Buddy Attick Park. A tent with Police Department employees will be set up in the grassy area by the main parking lot to provide first aid

Council Gets Legislative Report, Closes Books on Budget Year

by Thomas X. White

At its meeting Monday, June 18 the Greenbelt City Council received reports from 22nd District legislative representatives (see separate story), completed endof-fiscal year budget adjustments and acted on a range of business items before beginning an early summer sabbatical. Actions included approving proposed safe routes to Springhill Lake Elemen-School improvements and a Fiscal Year 2013 Program Open Space program proposal.

With the Maryland Municipal League (MML) convening June 24 through 27 in Ocean City and the upcoming July Fourth holiday, no council meetings are scheduled until July 9.

Most councilmembers will attend MML, where Mayor Judith Davis assumes presidency of the organization for 2012-13.

Following legislative reports, the mayor introduced Mark Perlman, who will serve Greenbelt this summer as an MML intern. The intern program is a partnership between MML and the University of Maryland's School of Public Policy.

Perlman will work closely with the city manager and city departments on a number of projects, including affordable housing approaches, "Complete Streets," Metro development and creation of a request for proposals relating to council's economic development initiative.

The second-year Master's candidate specializing in social policy and urban community development received a warm welcome from council.

End-of-year Adjustments

As the June 30 end of the city's fiscal year approaches, minor adjustments in various funds will be required to bring them in balance. Because no further meetings will take place in this fiscal year, the manager presented three ordinances dealing with required appropriations, requesting first reading and suspension of the rules so these ordinances could be adopted the same eve-

The first action was to make the Greenbelt West Infrastructure Fund from the Fund Balance to provide for fuel monitoring system repairs at the police station. The Greenbelt West Infrastructure Fund was established to account for public improvements as a result of required contributions from Greenbelt West developers.

The second ordinance made a $335,000 appropriation in the Special Projects Fund for purposes including $205,000 for the new police radio system and $75,000 to cover the expense of vehicle leasing applicable to the Metropolitan Area Drug Task Force. The city will be reimbursed for these expenses. In addition, $25,000 had been escrowed for 75th Anniversary expenses which had not been included in the Fiscal Year 2012 expenditure budget. Finally,

Thanks, New Deal For Sing-along

Last night's (June 20) community sing-along sponsored by Greenbelt Mamas and Papas at the New Deal Café was a success. Our thanks to the New Deal Café for hosting this fun event.

About 20 folks of all ages participated in singing a lot of kids' songs and active/movement songs, plus spirituals and folk songs. We learned new songs and even signed some (in American Sign Language) as we sang. Participants enjoyed the shakers and scarves, too, it appeared.

Perhaps we'll do it again in the near future . . . and thanks to all who participated.

Still Singing,

Li'l Dan Celdran and Danzson On behalf of Greenbelt Mamas and Papas

French Immersion, A Good GMS Fit

Last week an article appeared in the Greenbelt News Review sharing the possibility of the return of the French Immersion School to Greenbelt Middle School. The program was a part of the Greenbelt community from 1998 through 2001 when then Rogers Heights' seventh and eighth graders attended Greenbelt Middle School. In 2002 the elementary and middle school students were consolidated into one building at Robert Goddard French Immersion School in Seabrook. Today that facility houses two unique schools: Robert Goddard Montessori and Robert Goddard French Immersion. The French Immersion School is approximately 575 students from across the northern part of Prince George's County including many Greenbelt elementary and middle school students.

Our alumni, staff and past and current families are long-time Greenbelt residents. We have been or are members of a vital, first class learning community that offers students and families many amazing local, national and international opportunities. We have been a Maryland Green School since 2006 and have worked hard to landscape and beautify our surroundings in Seabrook. We would absolutely want to do the same if we are granted the opportunity to move our school to the old Greenbelt Middle School site.

For the past three years our students have participated in the Greenbelt Labor Day parade, winning runner up in the category with a Citroen truck. Our afterschool activities offered by both parents and faculty range from athletics like Zumba, STEP and belly dancing classes to international affairs such as model United Nations, to chess club. We would welcome a partnership with the Greenbelt community to both participate and support these types of activities for our students.

Provided the board grants us the wonderful opportunity to move forward into the old Greenbelt Middle School as residents of Greenbelt and members of the RGFI community, we would like to explore even more opportunities to work with the community to share opportunities and space at the school.

Supports GMS French Immersion Move

Last week's Greenbelt News Review covered the city's recent public hearing regarding old Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) as well as information on the county school system's plans for the school and adjacent bus lot. For a detailed memo provided by the city manager prior to the public hearing, see the Greenbelters post on June 9.

I firmly believe that both the city and the county will be well served by relocating the French Immersion program into old GMS. Operating it there along with the new middle school would form an attractive academic campus. This should enable cost savings for all taxpayers due to shared maintenance and security as well as enabling growth for a wellregarded specialty school in our area. Even without moving the bus lot, this would be a net positive for all residents whether they have children in school or not.

Utilizing old GMS as a school in its entirety, both the historic and the more recent portions, will enable the school system to focus on much-needed repairs to the building instead of conversion costs or demolition of unneeded space. The relocation of the adjacent bus lot would enable expansion of playing fields available to the schools and likely local residents, as well as removing an unattractive feature along Greenbelt Road.

The reason I oppose expanding city programs at old GMS is simple. We face a long list of major expenditures that is likely to stretch the city budget in coming years. These include paying off cost overruns from the Public Works building, state-mandated dam repairs plus dredging of both Greenbelt Lake (Buddy Attick Park) and Greenbrooke Lake (Schrom Hills Park), a major renovation of the movie theater, a new roof for the Aquatic and Fitness Center, along with numerous vehicles for both Public Works and public safety. Look for a capital projects worksession on the city calendar in early August if you want more insight on these coming costs

Corrections

In the front page article last week on council's stakeholder meeting with Greenbelt Homes, Inc., (GHI) there were some errors according to Eldon Ralph, GHI general manager.

The August 12 Roosevelt Center co-op event "Co-ops: Building a Better Greenbelt" is being held by the Greenbelt Cooperative Alliance, of which GHI is just one of seven members.

Concerning the city proposal to remove two small playgrounds within GHI (12 Court Hillside and 2 Court Laurel Hill) and build one multi-age playground requires approval by GHI.

GHI has not been dumping onto the forest preserve.

GHI did not accept the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission's final proposal for infrastructure upgrade to water piping in GHI's masonry units that would have made GHI responsible for 21,000 feet of extra pipe at great maintenance cost.

The News Review regrets the errors.

Obituaries

John A. Foster

Longtime Greenbelter John 'Jack" A. Foster, 80, died on June 20, 2012 of multiple injuries and heart disease. He would have been 81 on July 2.

The Fosters came to Greenbelt in 1974 and bought their home on Rosewood Drive. He was in the U.S. Army for 23 years and then worked at NSA. There were few jobs available after the war so he decided to attend Prince George's Community College, learned electronics and became a computer programmer. He worked for the Army Research Lab in Adelphi.

The Fosters attended Greenbelt Community Church. Later they became members of St. Andrews Episcopal Church in College Park. He was head of the DeMolay.

Mr. Foster volunteered for Boys and Girls Club activities, the Scouts (he became a Scoutmaster) and other youth activities.

A caring, friendly and outgoing person he helped others when he could. A heart attack in 1995 slowed him down but he continued to volunteer for community projects especially for young people's activities. Although he worked in pain, he refused to

He is survived by Helen R. Foster, his wife of 43 years; sons Ted John Foster, Sterling Scott Foster and John Alexander Foster, IV; daughter Juli Anastasia Foster-Frey; sister Ruth Houser and brother James L. Foster: his grandchildren Michelle, Philip, Rachel, Brian, Eric, Maya and Zander; great-grandchildren Noah, Grady, Daniel and Mary.

A funeral service will be held at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, 4912 College Avenue, College Park on Saturday, June 30 at 11 a.m. with The Reverend Carol Jablonsky officiating. Interment will be at Arlington National Cemetery on Thursday, July 5. Arrangements were by Borgwardt Funeral Home. After the Arlington National Cemetery ceremony Borgwardt will provide transportation to family and very close friends to Calvert House, Riverdale Park, for a buffet luncheon.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Andrew's Episcopal Church or the Heart Institute of Washington Hospital Center in honor of the exemplary care given Mr. Foster by Dr. Samer Najjar.

No Alcohol/Fireworks

Do not bring alcoholic beverages to the park. Alcohol is strictly prohibited in all cityowned parks and violators will be subject to arrest.

All pets must be on a leash.

The guidelines note that fireworks are deadly, dangerous and illegal. All forms, including firecrackers, snakes, sparklers and bottle rockets are prohibited by law in Greenbelt and throughout Prince George's County. Those found in possession of fireworks will be subject to arrest with penalties including fines up to $1,000 and/or six months in jail.

For safety and security reasons, people carrying coolers and packages into the park may be asked to have contents of their packages inspected.

Restricted Parking

The parking lot is reserved primarily for handicapped and elderly individuals. Vehicles must have handicapped or elderly persons on board. Handicapped tags and/or placards will not necessarily be required nor will they guarantee a parking space.

Temporary "No Parking" signs will be posted on streets surrounding the park. Vehicles parked in these areas will be towed.

Because of ongoing construction and loose soil, motorists should not plan to park alongside Kenilworth Avenue to watch the fireworks. Those parking adjacent to Kenilworth should make sure the car is completely off the roadway or risk being required to move. The roadway must remain clear for passage of emergency vehicles.

Traffic Regulations

Fireworks will begin at dusk (approximately 9 p.m.) and last 20 to 30 minutes. When they are over, exiting traffic will be redirected outbound on Crescent Road toward Kenilworth Avenue. Traffic from Kenilworth Avenue will not be allowed onto Crescent Road until most cars have left the area.

Motorists exiting the Beltway will not be allowed to proceed north on Kenilworth Avenue. I-95 traffic will be directed onto southbound Kenilworth Avenue. Motorists heading for the Old Greenbelt area can turn left onto Greenbelt Road and make another left onto either Lakecrest Drive or Southway.

If the fireworks begin on time and no problems develop, these temporary changes in traffic patterns should last no longer than from about 9:45 to 10:30 p.m.

Registered boaters on the lake, for safety reasons, will need to remain behind the temporary buoys that will be in place. Boats not registered with the city will not be allowed on the lake.

Calls for Information

Residents are asked not to call the police dispatcher to inquire "What time are the fireworks?" or the effect any inclement weather might have. Police telephone lines must be kept open for those with emergencies or for other police-related concerns. Those needing additional information for any recreational event should call the Greenbelt Recreation Department at 301-474-0646.

$50,000 was expended in FY12 staff has proposed that FY13 on the police computer system upgrade that had been originally budgeted in Fiscal Year 2011 but not spent.

Funds Re-appropriation

The third action was a resolution related to re-appropriation of funds within departments in the General Fund. This resolution is necessary to meet the City Code requirement that the expenditure budget for each functional area in the General Fund (i.e., Public Safety, Public Works, etc.) exceed actual expenditures every fiscal

The manager noted this accountability sometimes requires funds to be transferred from functional areas in which savings were achieved to functional areas that may have exceeded their adopted budget. The resolution lists specific transfers in or out for these respective department accounts.

For FY12 it appears that the Public Safety and Public Works Departments bailed out General Government, CARES, Recreation, Miscellaneous and Non-Departmental with total transfers of $300,000.

Chevy's

Council took no position on a routine transfer application for a Class B(BLX) Beer, Wine and Liquor License for use by Chevy's Fresh Mex restaurant at Greenway Center. The transfer is essentially from the current Chevy's to a new Chevy's entity at the same location.

School Safety

Council considered and approved plans for proposed Springhill Lake Elementary School Safe Routes to School (SRTS) improvements. These improvements, supported by a federal grant under the Maryland SRTS program, will involve a variety of improvements to Springhill Lake Drive in front of the school.

With a city match of $15,000, the project will make about $150,000 in safety, signage and crosswalk improvements in the area. The city's Advisory Planning Board provided a report on the project but did not take a position.

Councilmember Silke Pope expressed concern about the timing of the project and possible construction taking place during the school year. The project is estimated to take away about 17 street parking spaces on Springhill Drive but council felt there were sufficient available spaces in the area.

Open Space Program

Council considered and approved a report from Assistant Director of Planning Terri Hruby regarding the city's Fiscal Year 2013 Program Open Space (POS) Annual Program. A city submittal was due to the National Capital Park & Planning Commission by June 25.

The city has been notified it will not be receiving any FY13 POS funding but will receive about $41,000 in previously approved POS funds.

From the city's unencumbered fund balance of $145,904.13, include Youth Center gym floor replacement (new development project), 12 Court Hillside Playground Improvement Project and Buddy Attick Park Master Plan Improvements.

Stormwater

Hruby also reported to council on proposed new county legislation (CB-40-2012) to establish a Stormwater Management Retrofit Program. If enacted, the program would offer financial incentives in the form of rebates to individuals, businesses and nonprofit organizations that install "green" stormwater management techniques. The program would be available starting in Fiscal Year 2014 for at least five targeted communities in the county.

Based on suggested amendments by Councilmember Leta Mach relating to broadening the scope of the program to include cooperatives and not-for-profit organizations, council approved support for the legislation and agreed that the city convey its interest in being chosen as one of the five targeted communities.

GATE Rent

Council direction was requested on the imposition of a rental fee for the Community Center space (792 sq. ft.) that has been used for operations of Greenbelt Access Television, Inc. (GATE) since the center opened in 1996. The manager's information indicated that, at a recent meeting, council had asked that the issue of rent for the space be placed on a council agenda for discussion. Staff provided a brief analysis of rents applied for other spaces in the Community Center.

After introducing the topic, Davis moved that a rental fee be applied to the GATE space at the same level as that charged for the Greenbelt News Review. There was no second to the mayor's Mach said that more background on the history and range of rental information would be helpful and after further discussion and comments from the audience, council agreed to defer the question.

Legislation

One item of business was consideration of Greenbelt's submission to the MML of statewide legislative action requests. Staff recommended the city submit a request related to speed camera enforcement, specifically modifying the requirement for a police officer to review and certify speed camera citations by authorizing a trained civilian to perform the function. Another item was to support again the Plastic Bag Fee Bill. If enacted the Bill would allow counties and municipalities to impose a fee on plastic bags dispensed at grocery stores and other retail outlets. The last request would provide for alternative revenue authority for municipalities. Greenbelt obtains 60 percent or more of its revenue from the real estate tax, making it subject to periodic sharp declines in property valuations.

Gaines reported on efforts a little more close-to-home, namely legislative efforts to persuade the Maryland Department of Transportation to select a site in Baltimore for locating a proposed CSX Intermodal freight facility to serve the Port of Baltimore. This issue is of concern to Greenbelt since one site is in nearby Beltsville and the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center.

Gaines also reported on her ongoing efforts to secure adequate funding for Maryland Youth Service Bureaus (YSB), such as Greenbelt CARES. She said it has been difficult dealing with the Maryland agency handling YSBs over the past several years but is hopeful that things will improve.

Ross reported on his efforts to secure passage of the Civil Marriage Protection Act which will permit marriages by persons of the same sex; changes in income tax reporting procedures, which would mean about $70 million more in state aid to Prince George's County schools; a new installment tax payment provision for seniors who own their homes free and clear of a mortgage; and his strong support for legislation that would require students to remain in school until they are 18.

Ballot Issues

The delegation reminded people there will likely be three major ballot issues associated with the upcoming November elections

Two actions of the legislature may be petitioned to referendum if the opponents secure sufficient signatures. One is the Civil Marriage Protection Act and the other is the Maryland Dream Act which provides reduced tuition for certain illegal immigrants at Maryland colleges and universities.

The third ballot would require public officials to leave public office when they are found guilty of a criminal offense. Current law allows such individuals, such as former County Executive Jack Johnson and his wife Leslie, who were criminally charged, to remain in office until they are sentenced Assistant City Manager David Moran followed the legislators with a brief report to council on the city's legislative program. He provided a scorecard for council on the 13 pieces of legislation where council had taken a position this year. Of the 10 bills supported by the city, only three were enacted into law.

One was legislation requiring apartment and condominium projects with 10 or more units to implement a recycling program by October 2014. The other two bills would prohibit retail alcohol delivery in Prince George's County and require family services agencies to use only evidencebased, home-visiting programs for improving parent and child outcomes.

In the three cases where the city opposed suggested legislation, their success was better. Two bills that would allow commercial signs within state highway rights-of-way never made it out of committee. The other failed bill related to telecommunication taxes and the establishment of a reform commission dealing with cable telecommunications. City opposition was based on the possibility that such legislation could impact cable franchises within the city. The city's and MML concerns were addressed by deleting references to public access, education and government fees and the inclusion of a municipal representative on the proposed commission.

Exhibit Displays Historic Trees

Alight Dance and City Museum Highlight the City's Women

by Yagana Shah

Visitors were taken back to the founding years of Greenbelt on Sunday, June 24 during a performance of "Hometown Heroes: 75 Years of Extraordinary Greenbelt Women" at the Greenbelt Museum.

Attendees were greeted by a tour guide dressed in a 30s-style cotton dress, with hair curled, cheeks blushed and lips noticeably rouged. Angella Foster, artistic director of the alight dance theater, who began planning the performance nearly a year ago, said she sent the dancers hair and makeup tutorials to mimic the era. Foster said she made about half the dancers' costumes.

Hair, makeup, costumes and shoes were all meant to be reminiscent of 1937-39 when Greenbelt was founded.

The performance-led tour took visitors through scenes of daily home life in Greenbelt during the era, with a solo dancer performing in most scenes and the entire group coming together for a dance performance in the outdoor scene.

Foster said all performers had some dance background. Their experience ranged from ballroom and flamenco to ballet and modern contemporary. "We're an eclectic bunch," said Foster.

The tour started in the yard with a housewife hanging laundry on the clothesline. Most scenes were narrated with an audio recording of interviews of Greenbelt residents, adding insight to the surroundings. The tour took visitors through a day in the life of a housewife as she performed household chores and looked after her infant.

The dancer brought each scene to life, performing a sequence of rhythmic movements and bringing character to the simplest household tasks. From dusting to dishwashing, each scene was illustrated beautifully by careful movements of the dancer. The museum house provided an ideal set, complete with 30sera household items such as a radio, antique telephone and even a bar of Palmolive soap.

With six dancers participating, no two performances were the same. In each performance, a different dancer took the lead role, putting her own personality into the character.

Bringing History Alive

"It's an interesting approach to bring history alive by making it personal and bringing real people into it . . . Angella has an amazingly creative mind. She does a meld of theater and dance together in an original way," said attendee Penny Martin. "The amount of vision it takes to create a performance in the space and the way she used the museum as a background worked really well," Martin

Megan Searing Young, curator and director of historical programs at the Greenbelt Museum, said, "We knew it would create a certain buzz and Future performances are scheduled for July 15 and 22 at 1, 1:30, 2 and 2:30 p.m. Each performance tour can accommodate only six to eight people, so reserving tickets ahead of time is encouraged. Tickets can also be purchased on the day of the performance at the museum.

Crazy Music, Festive Quilts Crowd Roosevelt Center

by Vasudha Kowtha

A bright sun and steady stream of live music graced Roosevelt Center last Saturday, as onlookers basked. Old Greenbelt's 13th annual Crazy Quilt Music Festival, sponsored by Friends of New Deal Cafe Arts (FONDCA), lasted from about noon to 10 p.m., spanning an impressive breadth of genres, chamber, pop, rock, electronic, country, folk, honky tonk and their many permutations. Genre-fidelity was rare but a covenant to innovation to soulful music that pushed, ripped through the envelope of expected musical parameters was predominant. "This is unexpected music" says a long-time attendee of the festival.

Ethan Balis is the lead singer and guitarist of "Machines on Vacation," a band comprised of a string quartet, a singer/guitarist and a Mac, who take the stage at 1 p.m. "Don't let the moonlight tell you otherwise" his voice soars and people get on their feet and sway to the music. The group labels themselves "electronic chamber pop" but what exactly this means - do people really slow dance to electronic chamber pop? – is unclear. Balis agrees. "What's interesting," he begins, clearly passionate about the subject, "is that people make music in genres but people listen to music they like, regardless of genre. Classifications are unnecessary." His music, a combination of electronic and acoustic sound exemplifies this, the former being "full of sound potential but cold," balanced by the "warmth and infinite possibilities" of the latter.

As ubiquitous as the nontypecast bands is the small-town camaraderie of the event, the tight-knit community feel. Much of the audience has attended in previous years or plans to attend in years to come. A homemade jewelry vendor describes the evolving festival. "What's funny is that it used to be called the Crazy Quilt Festival and people would come here to buy quilts and instead find music. When they finally tacked on the word 'music.' someone came and brought quilts" she laughs, and points at a host of quilts which hang side by side, held by clothespins to a line. Chrissy Wilkins, an Old Greenbelt resident who brought the quilts, says that she makes them with her sister-in-law and is especially proud of their cubist-piecing techniques.

of "The Nice Trys" who performed at 6 p.m., has organized the festival three times in the past. Credit for the eclectic mix of bands that are invited to perform at the festival goes to him and audience members give him lots of it, know him by face. "I think Greenbelt's great" he says and pauses, before adding "I still believe in this town." He introduces Dorian Winterfeld, who sits on the board of the New Deal Café and has attended the festival for all 13 years of its existence. "It's gotten bigger" he reminisces. "I just hope it's going to get even bigger." The festival is free, has always been, but its future is tied to not only the generosity of FONDCA but also to an increase in funding from the city. In hard times like now, the fate of public, steadfastly creative endeavors such as the Crazy Quilt Music Festival remain in the hands of the local government.

The festival surges on. "Star FK Radium," a play on "RFK Stadium" produces hauntingly melodic pieces, elevated by an in the dark.

abiding commitment to rhythm. The three person band includes a violinist, guitarist and percussionist. Alissa Taylor sways with her violin in deep arcs as she plays. "Our music is simple" she says later, "it's simple and intense, three parts shared equally and no unnecessary sound." Audience member Tara Wilson tried to describe the music: "It's like I'm on the grass at night, gazing at the stars and having a realization. I've known, subconsciously, the elements of this realization but it comes together at that moment, on that night, my eyes are tearing up and the world is suddenly so beautiful." And as darkness falls, everyone trooped into the New Deal Café to listen to Kevin Robinson and KERQ who are full of jazz and energy. Outside, Joe Harris and the sound manager are packing up. "I had an amazing time," says the latter, "I just had surprise after surprise, it was crazy." Joe chimes in, "It was crazy man, it was Crazy Quilt!" They high-five and laugh

Astronomical Society Star Party Turns Locals to the Night Sky

by Jenny Paulson

Thousands of stars and fireflies twinkled in the night sky as experts and amateur astronomers gathered Saturday, June 23 at Northway Field to gaze at stars, planets and the crescent moon.

Next to the Northway soft-ball fields in Greenbelt is a dome that encases the Celestron 14-inch catadioptric telescope called "Mead Celestron." The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt holds "Star Parties" twice a month for locals to come look at the night sky through the telescope.

Everyone is invited to bring their own telescopes if they have them or to come look through the Mead Celestron telescope. Experts came on Saturday to teach attendees about astronomy.

"Does it pass the twinkle test?" asked Doug Love, director of the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt. "Stars twinkle. Planets do not. That's how you tell the difference."

Morris Hedge of South Laurel attended his first Star Party Saturday. He considers himself an amateur astronomer and came to learn more about telescopes.

"I've always had an interest in astronomy," said Hedge. "It's great to be here with others who share my interests." At the party, Hedge had his first experience looking through the "Mead Celestron" telescope at star Alberio. With the naked eye, Alberio appears as one star but, looking through the telescope, it is clearly two stars.

Donated to Society

The "Mead Celestron" telescope and the dome were donated to the society by Montgomery College in 2001. The telescope was named after professional astronomers Gil and Jaylee Mead who had donated money to the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt

Love was a founder of the group in 1992 along with George and Lynn Gliba. Love enjoys teaching astronomy to those who attend Star Parties.

"We're so benefitted here with a lot of professionals in the club," said Love. Sometimes Love brings crescent or star-shaped cookies to share with Star Party attendees

The purpose of the Astronomical Society is to educate people on science and astronomy. In addition to Star Parties for the public, the club meets the last

Grants for Children's Medical Expenses

The United Healthcare Children's Foundation is currently accepting grant applications from families needing financial assistance to help pay for children's health care treatment, services or equipment that is not covered or only partially covered by the family's commercial health insurance plan.

Qualifying families can receive up to $5,000 to help pay for physical, occupational and speech therapy, counseling services, surgeries, prescriptions, wheelchairs, orthotics, eyeglasses and hearing aids.

Thursday of every month to discuss recent astronomy news and upcoming events. The society is part of the International Dark Sky Association and seeks to educate the public on light pollution or artificial light that decreases visibility of the night sky.

"It takes 20 minutes for your eyes to adjust to the darkness again after looking at a bright light," said Love.

Martha Gay, who has been with the club since 2001, currently serves as president. "Fireflies are the only kind of light pollution I can accept," said Gay with a smile.

Kevin Balch of Silver Spring has been attending Star Parties here for several years. At Saturday's Star Party, he got nice views of the planets Saturn and Mars with his telescope and allowed those in attendance to take a look. "Many people don't know there are polar ice caps on Mars," said Balch. "But they are visible through a telescope."

Saturday night's party included education on "earthshine," which is light reflected from the earth onto the dark side of a crescent moon. Attendees also witnessed the International Space Station streaking across the sky.

In the summer months professionals and amateurs alike often find themselves witnessing a flash of light across the viewfinder of their telescopes and wonder, "Was that a meteor, or a firefly?"

Why Is It Necessary To Replace Missing Teeth?

Replacing a missing tooth is important for several reasons. When you lose a tooth, your jawbone gradually loses strength and firmness, causing bone loss and changes in facial features. The loss of even one tooth can cause an unstable bite and chewing problems. Because remaining teeth often shift, proper cleaning becomes more difficult leading to periodontal problems and tooth decay. Teeth that have shifted no longer fit together properly, which can create excessive wear, headaches, and many other problems. There are also concerns associated with the appearance of a smile with missing teeth. First impressions are made at a glance and nothing makes a better impression than a beautiful smile. Most adults feel extremely self-conscious about a gap in their smile.

A dental implant restored with a crown looks, feels and functions like a natural tooth. Dental implants are safe, reliable and effective for single and multiple tooth restoration. Implants are made of a biocompatible titanium alloy and are placed in the jawbone, where they fuse to the bone, replacing the root of the tooth. In many cases, a temporary crown can be placed on the tooth immediately and replaced with a permanent crown. Implants typically last a long time (they won't decay), and they are the best restorations in cases where the neighboring teeth are healthy and properly aligned.

With the recent advances in minimally invasive dental implants, more patients are candidates for permanent tooth replacement. Mini dental implants are popular because of their immediate use and also because they are less invasive, less expensive, and heal faster than traditional implants. The most common use of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures.

The bottom line for many dental implant patients is that for the first time since they have had dentures, they can actually talk and chew without being afraid that their dentures will fall out or shift causing sores in their mouths. Patients are able to remove and replace the denture easily so that they can clean their gums and dentures daily.

Every dentist should listen to their patients' concerns and goals for dental health and present a range of treatment options so the patient can choose a plan which best suits their dental needs.

Early Religious Worship Here Showed Group Cooperation

by Sandra Lange

From the 18th century until 1935, the area around Kenilworth Avenue near Crescent Road and Ivy Lane was the site of the Shadrack and Sarah Turner family farm known as Wild Cat. According to an historical marker placed near the city's cemetery on Ivy Lane, the Turners, zealous Methodists, hosted meetings from 1776 to 1803. Several United Methodist Churches of Prince George's County trace their history to preaching held at the Turner farm.

Fast forward to 1935 when the federal government purchased the Turner farm and nearby land to build Greenbelt. In determining who would be the lucky first families to reside in Greenbelt in 1937, the government used quotas to insure religious diversity. The percentages of Catholics, Protestants and Jews chosen reflected the religious make-up of the District of Columbia at that time. Early Greenbelt was 60 percent Protestant, 30 percent Catholic, seven percent Jewish and three percent "Other." First families included 300 Protestants, 183 Catholics, 62 Jews, 16 Mormons and eight Quakers.

Since the U. S. Constitution guaranteed the separation of church and state, the federal government built residential, recreational and commercial facilities but no houses of worship. Interdenominational services were commonly held in the Greenbelt Elementary School, now the Community Center.

At one time Protestants within the city considered whether or not to welcome Jews to join their congregation. To encourage understanding of each religion, the Hebrew Congregation invited members of the other faiths to attend their services.

These early efforts fostered religious tolerance and pioneer families worked hard at achieving social justice. The "Permanent Conference on Religious Life in Greenbelt" was founded in 1939 by Rabbi Leon Elsberg, Father Leo Fealy, Elder Donald Wagstaff (Church of Latter Day Saints) and Reverend Robert Kinchelow, the first pastor of Greenbelt Community Church. These men believed that "religion in Greenbelt can speak with a united voice"

Permanent Conference

The "Permanent Conference on Religious Life in Greenbelt" still exists. It is known now as the Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association and has participation by Jewish, Catholic, Protestant, Baha'i, Buddhist and Muslim members. Today the association conducts the Interfaith Thanksgiving Celebration (which dates to 1939) and the Interfaith Baccalaureate Service for Eleanor Roosevelt High School seniors.

Early on some residents and clergy envisioned the construction of a single building to be shared by all faiths. In 1940 the government drafted concept plans for such a building showing four dedicated sanctuaries – Jewish, Catholic, Protestant and Mormon. Two wings would house Protestant and Catholic chapels and other areas would be devoted to the Jewish synagogue and a Mormon chapel. Each denomination would worship separately with combined services at certain times.

Limited funds and the start of World War II intervened, however, and the center was never built. When the war ended, each denomination chose to construct its own building.

Several groups applied to the federal Public Housing Authority (PHA) to purchase land to build a church or synagogue. The PHA decided that it could not sell land outright to religious groups because first it must advertise the land for public sale. The groups would thus have to bid for the land against private persons presumably willing to pay much more than the religious groups could.

In 1948 the PHA advertised the sites for sale for "semi-public" use. Five religious entities submitted bids: St. Hugh's Catholic Church, the Community Church, Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church, the Lutheran Church and the Jewish Community Center.

Methodists were the first Greenbelt faith group to construct a one-room chapel on government-leased land on Woodland Way, near Forestway. The chapel was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mowatt in memory of their son, Lt. Frank C. Mowatt, a fighter pilot killed in Germany in 1944 had originated at the University of Maryland campus. In 1949 the church acquired four acres at 40 Ridge Road. The church, now known as Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church, opened in 1955. Its sanctuary was dedicated in 1981.

Community Church

The Greenbelt Community Church purchased 2.5 acres of land at the corner of Hillside and Crescent Roads. The cornerstone was laid in 1949 and the church opened in 1951. Original equipment still includes the lectern from which the Bible is read at every service. The plaque on the lectern states: "Dedicated to the Glory of God, And to Human Brotherhood By the Jewish Community Center of Greenbelt."

In March 1939, the Greenbelt Hebrew Congregation was established with 30 member families. The congregation met at the Center Elementary School for Friday night services and at the fire house during the first High Holy Days in September.

During World War II, services were held in members' homes. After the war the Greenbelt congregation merged with the Jewish Community Center of Prince George's County with services held in the elementary school as well as the Greenbelt Community Church.

In 1949 the congregation purchased three quarters of an acre of land at the corner of Westway and Ridge Road. Building construction began in 1952. On May 23, 1953, Mayor Frank Lastner formally announced, "Help Build the Jewish Community Center Week End."

The Washington Star reported the event as follows: "The idea was conceived by a Catholic, taken up by a Congregationalist, and is being carried through by followers of all three major faiths." The building was constructed with very little professional help and dedicated in 1955. The name of the synagogue was changed to Mishkan Torah in 1968.

Holy Cross

Holy Cross Lutheran Church began in 1944 at the Ridge Road home of pioneer Edward F. Trumbule. Their first church building was constructed in 1951 at 22 Ridge Road. Then in 1968 the congregation acquired land and constructed a new building on Greenbelt Road and sold the Ridge Road property to the city of Greenbelt.

Later the city built a 100-unit senior citizen complex on the site with financing through the State of Maryland's Community Development Administration. Green Ridge House opened in March 1979.

Roman Catholic families worshipped at Holy Redeemer Church in Berwyn Heights, where Catholic children attended the parish school. From 1937 to 1947 many Catholic families also attended services held in the Old Greenbelt Theatre.

St. Hugh's became a parish in 1947 and purchased land on Crescent Road in 1949. They first built a parochial school with science lab, library and auditorium to serve eight grades. The church then held services in the school until the present church and Grenoble Hall were built in 1963.

First teachers of the school were all nuns affiliated with the Sisters of the Holy Cross. In the 1980s, however, both lay and religious persons comprised the faculty.

In 1988 fire destroyed much of the school's roof and four classrooms. During the rebuilding process, classes were held in the church basement and at the Mishkan Torah synagogue. Diminishing numbers of students, however, led the archdiocese to close the school in 2010.

In 1985, a small independent group of Catholics formed the Catholic Community of Greenbelt. They meet on Sundays in the city's Municipal Building with services conducted by visiting ordained Roman Catholic priests.

Other Faith Groups

Other major faith groups in Greenbelt include the Greenbelt Baptist Church and the Baha'i. The Baptist Church, which organized in 1953, purchased four acres of land at the corner of Crescent and Greenhill Roads in 1954. Their building was dedicated in 1959. The Spiritual Assembly of Baha'i organized in 1976. It currently has 19 members who meet in each other's homes. The group works closely with Greenbelt and Prince George's County peace groups and is active in the Interfaith Leadership Association.

In 1968 the Community Church, along with St. Hugh's Catholic Church, hosted 700 members of the Poor People's March on their way to Washington, D. C., where they pitched tents in what was called Resurrection City. The News Review reported that over 150 volunteers provided food, medicine, cots and other necessities for people ranging in age from infants to the elderly.

Mutual respect and religious tolerance have been hallmarks in Greenbelt since its founding in 1937. In recent years Community Church members contributed to the new roof on Mishkan Torah and the Jewish congregation contributed to repair of the Community Church's organ.

On the occasion of the Rev. Dan Hamlin's retirement in June 2012, after 28 years at the pulpit of the Community Church, Rabbi Jonathan Cohen dedicated the Friday evening service "to honor Dan and to celebrate his contributions to the City of Greenbelt and to Mishkan Torah."

The spirit of cooperation inherent in many of Greenbelt's businesses and organizations permeates its religious institutions as well. People of all faiths come together to march in the Labor Day Festival Parade, to visit each others' houses of worship, to perform in the combined choir, to share ideas and to foster mutually supportive relationships.

Today various church groups hark back to pioneer days by renting space to hold their Sunday worship services in the Community Center, movie theater and in other local churches. This is the Greenbelt way.
